

Kenya Munsch Profile

Video Transcript

So my name is Kenya Munch, and I'm in the commercial department, and I'm a commercial banking associate.

Hays, Kansas is a very small community.

This is the type of town where we all know each other. We bumped into each other at some point.

You know, you go down the street or you're driving down the street and everyone wakes. So it's it's a very friendly, tight knit community.

I celebrate my culture every day.

It doesn't have to be a special occasion. It doesn't have to be a month, a holiday back back from home. Like, I carry my culture with me at all times, and I like to share my traditions, the history of my country, and just how amazing our people are.

But, I feel like, Hispanic Culture Month, maybe that sparks an interest or curiosity and gives me the opportunity to talk about my culture. But to myself, it's it's not about a month. It's it's just a way of life.

Giving back to our to my Hispanic community.

Here recently, Shane Smith, our the branch president, we went to Fort Hays and we did a regarding, consumer banking, small business banking, budgeting, and credit.

It was such an amazing opportunity.

The kids were engaged. You you know, getting to talk to them about banking and all the opportunities that there are out there. You know, we form these relationships and we let them know, hey, we speak the language, we can help you, you know, then it's amazing to see our people succeed.

I'm proud to work at Commerce Bank because I work with the best people. The culture aligns with my values and all we're all about relationship building. And that's not only with our customers, but I feel like with with between employees and leadership, I feel like they are in touch with us, and they listen, and that's very important.
